Ramblings from the Chair

That's it - another Summer League ended, so the summer is over and of course the weather has improved. I missed the Ibstock event (fortuitously!) when I gather that the rain was coming in horizontally and several competitors were seen to be emptying the water not only from their O shoes but other parts of their attire. However it was not all bad and several evening provided that mix of a balmy evening, superb forest and competition that we all look forward to. Certainly the competition was fierce with the overall result being in doubt until the last event. Congratulations to Roger Edwards who beat Simon Ford by the narrowest of margins.

Next on our calendar of big events is the Compass Sport Cup and Trophy Final at

Insurance—Action required by Planners

Since the club acquired its own SI kit we have taken out an insurance policy to cover losses. So far our only losses relate to SI kit so planners need to be aware of and follow the insurance requirements.

Equipment is only covered if in unoccupied vehicle concealed from view and fully locked. Kit must be stored in the named locations and these storage locations must be adequately secured.

We are covered for losses over £50, but you need to get a Crime Number from the police before making a claim. You are covered for losses over £100 if put out controls the day before an event but

- ◆ I must pre -notify our Insurers,

- ◆ boxes can only be in remote locations ie off paths or public spaces and
- ◆ only put out on the day before.

You are not covered for equipment in your car overnight.

So please notify me if you intend to put out controls the day before with details of what you intend to do. i.e. Location, when you are going to start and a brief description of the area.

Fineshade on 18th October. We shall be hosting teams from 22 clubs from all over the United Kingdom. LVO representing Northern Ireland are flying in to East Midlands for the weekend and WCOG are booking their coach to leave the North West in the early hours of the morning. Whilst we don't have the organisation complexity of the British Middles we shall need a lot of help to ensure a smooth running day and provide our visitors with a quality event.

Two things that you may not know about the Compass Sport Final (I didn't until recently) One: there is a competition for the fastest run in from the final control. The winner is awarded the Golden Shoe. Two: the winning teams get champagne and sweets!

Elsewhere in the Newsletter are details of the two major social functions of our year. The Annual General Meeting and the Club Dinner and Presentation Evening, both of which have moved to new venues this year. Please give both events your support.

Coaching

Congratulations to the club members who have gained the following coaching awards:

Teaching Orienteering Part 1

- ◆ Birthe Richter-Wilson

UKCC Level 1 Certificate in Orienteering Coaching

- ◆ Chris Bosley
- ◆ John Marriott
- ◆ Ben Windsor

UKCC Coach Assessor

- ◆ Judith Holt

Learning to coach is great way to focus on the technical skills of orienteering. The UKCC level 1 course is a three day course with the assessment being integrated into the final day of the course. You will see that a course is advertised on the opposite page but unfortunately the closing date will probably have passed before you receive this newsletter. However other course dates can be found on the British Orienteering website (www.britishorienteering.org.uk). If you are interested in becoming a coach please contact the club's coaching coordinator Judith Holt (contact details on page 3) who will be able to advise you.

Treasurer's Report 2008/09

The turnover through the club account doubled this year with the promotion of the British Middle Distance Championships and the grants for Sport England, National Forest Company and the Country Sports Authorities. There is a significant deficit of some £3,300. Some of this was planned as we intended to spend over £5,000 on the purchase of SI electronic timing equipment, with the cost being spread over several years. We did however make a loss on the British Middle Distance Championship of £840, despite obtaining over £1,300 in sponsorship. The main reasons were the cost of litho map printing, when we had only budgeted for laser printing, and the need to insure the £30,000 of projection and SI equipment for the weekend. We will bear these lessons in mind for future events, ie entry fees need to be raised.

In August the Committee considered the budget for 2009/10 and a number of changes are planned. In order to encourage casual members to join the club the national Discount scheme will operate at all events rather than just large events. The fees for Winter League will therefore be £5 for non-club member adults. There will be a £1 hire charge for SI equipment at all these events too. With Family membership for the first year being only £9 we hope to see more members joining LEI and claiming their £2 event fee reduction. To mitigate this extra charge we will apply the Junior rate to Short courses at minor events, so that families going round, for instance, the yellow course will only be charged £1 per map.

We will withdraw the subsidy to those running in the CompassSport Events and British & JK Relays and instead will offer free runs to all helpers at LEI events. So now is the time to volunteer to help at Wakerley and Beacon Hill, etc.

The cost of sending out LEI news now exceeds the income raised from Membership subscriptions we therefore will put to the October AGM an increase in subscriptions, the new rates are Seniors/Families £6 and Juniors £3. If agreed, these increases will come into effect in 2011.

The convention of having standard entry fees for events will be broken and more events will be individually priced to ensure the income covers the costs. We hope that all the above measures will bring a break even situation for 2009/10.

ANNUAL PRESENTATION DINNER and AGM

This year's dinner is at a new venue offering better value and is to be on Saturday November 28th. You are asked to gather from 7.00 at Kirby Muxloe Golf Club (off Station Road) and we will be sitting down at 7.45.

We have a private function room and should not use the main bar which is reserved for members.

First course choice is from melon; a seafood salad; chicken liver pate or winter vegetable soup. Main courses will be a carvery; salmon or cheese and onion with a choice from Pavlova, fresh fruit salad or cheese to follow

This year the cost per person will be £18.

Please advise Roger Edwards of your choice for each course by November 13th by using the enclosed return slip or by email and either let him have your cheque or transfer funds electronically to the Club's bank.

This is a smart venue and we have some rules to abide by. Gentlemen are required to wear Jackets and ties. And ladies should wear appropriate dress although that is not defined. The following items of clothing are however not accepted: trainers, shorts, denim clothing, jeans, T-shirts, sleeveless or collarless shirts.

The use of mobile phones is not permitted in the Clubhouse and they must be switched off. They may be used for outgoing calls only in the foyer areas of the building.

This year's AGM is on Monday 26th of October and again we have a change of venue and format. Please note both these dates in your diaries. We are again to gather from 7.00 and drinks will be available and light nibbles provided by the club. We will be meeting at Park House, the home of Glenfield Parish Council off Stamford Street in Glenfield, and catering will be in house. The formal meeting will start at 7.30 prompt and the agenda is given elsewhere in this newsletter.

OTHER SOCIALS

We have our traditional Christmas event which this year is at Aylestone Meadows on an updated map. We have booked a room at the Black Horse and will be laying on some nibbles after the event. Parking is a bit limited in the small car park by the canal so you may have to find somewhere in the nearby streets.

Social gatherings are a good way of involving members in the club family which helps when we need to turn to members for help with jobs. The sport is a solitary one and it is important that we make members feel part of the overall organisation.

If you have any ideas for another social event we may try and slot one in early in the new year. In the past we have had the occasional quiz or skittles evening and depending on numbers could try the same again but any new ideas are

Yvette Baker Trophy—8th November—Wakerley Woods

If you are a Junior member of Lei or a parent of a Junior, LEI would love to put out a full Junior Team for this LEI event. For those of you who aren't sure of what this is, it's an interclub event, effectively an inter-county competition for juniors (M/W 20 and under). As LEI is a small club with only a number of Junior members, we would love to include any Junior who is willing to run. Adult courses will be available on the same day so parents can run too but obviously not count towards the Yvette Baker score.

All LEI club juniors and attendees at this club are eligible to participate, there's no selection.

To score points for the Club, a Junior can enter Yellow, Orange, Light Green or Green and LEI gets the best chance of scoring points by entering at least sixteen Juniors with a mixture of ages and M/W classes over the different courses.

Whilst entries to run are made on the day, as for a normal event, it would be good to know beforehand of Juniors who plan to take part. Please speak to Alison Hardy (Club Captain) or one of the Club coaches, contact details are on the inside cover of this newsletter.

Summer Events Roundup

Summer was a time for celebration of a year's achievements. The club was invited for the first time to be part of a celebration evening at County Hall in July. We joined the Primary Schools Cross-Country winners for a hot evening. The County Council Chairman presented many awards including those to the five main County-wide winners (see table opposite):

Awards were also presented to the Club league winners: Dominic Leake, Imogen Wilson and James Gath.

Mike Hamilton, Chief Executive of British Orienteering, was our guest speaker and he rounded off the evening before the rush to find some refreshments to and consume the substantial buffet.

The first 'County' Schools was held at Donisthorpe in late June and teams from year 5/6 and 7/8 came. In the morning Primary Event Melton and Belvoir SSP represented by Frisby Primary school dominated proceedings and won the pairs competition and also the non-championship individual event.

For some, speed took precedence over careful navigation, with some poor results from not looking at the map, but some good runs from those who did.

In the second white course, the individual, the girls' Cross Country running skills came to the fore with five girls being in front of

Pos	Name	Points
1	Melton & Belvoir	36
2	North West Leicestershire	39
3	Hinckley & Bosworth	45

the first boy.

In the afternoon, the team from Oadby & Wigston outperformed the team from Melton & Belvoir represented by Longfield High School. The greater experience arising from the Oadby & Wigston's inter high school sprint competition proving a decisive factor, especially in the boys competition.

The Girl's event, on a yellow course, was the closest with the lead swapping twice with

Rachel Borrowes, Abington HS, beating Polly Machin, Longfield HS, by 9 seconds. Both were nearly 5 minutes clear of the next girl. If interested, each of them is capable of gaining a position in the East Midlands Squad. The girls' team results using cross-country scoring system were also close.

2	Melton & Belvoir	39	30	69

Full results and split times are on the club web site www.leioc.org.uk

The 2010 County event is scheduled for Friday June 18th, at a new venue. Before then schools are considering attending this Autumn's British Schools Championships. The Score event is on Saturday 10th October in Essex and the Long distance (colour coded) event is on Sunday 22nd November in the North East. Welbeck College are sending a team and their final practice will be in a whole school one hour score event on Tuesday and Thursday before in the Outwoods. Nearly 300 are expected over the two days making this the biggest junior event in the county for ten years. The Tuesday event is open to others including adults.

Schools are invited to send pupils to the Inter-county event being hosted by the club on Sunday 8th November at Wakerley Woods. The Club captain, Alison Hardy, would be interested in any secondary pupil.

New Junior Committee Representative

Hi. I'm Daniel Parsons and have been asked by the committee to become Junior Rep now Ben Windsor is off to Cambridge. I first heard of the opportunity at the back end of July and jumped at the chance to join. Although I do not officially take office until the AGM, I attended the August committee meeting. This was extremely interesting and enabled me to experience the inner workings of an orienteering club. Believe me there is tremendous amount of work going on behind the scenes that will benefit all, and especially the juniors.

My predecessor, Ben Windsor has done a terrific job and it was evident from that first meeting that he had put in a lot of effort for the juniors and I would like to thank him for his work. Not only has he competed well, but he has been heavily involved in event organisation, and this makes him a hard act to follow. I'm really going to have to brush up on my navigation technique.

Living near Northampton makes frequent involvement in the club a little difficult as I am reliant on my Dad to be chauffeur. However I persuaded him to volunteer to help at the British Middles and we'll be doing the same at the Compass Sport Cup Final. We do find it difficult to participate in Summer evening series, but if you live close by try them out next year.

Finally if anyone has any suggestions regarding juniors do not hesitate to contact me. My email address is O5ParsonsD@campion.northants.sch.uk and I will be most willing to relay these suggestions to the committee.

Autumn Series

The Saturday morning Autumn Series is along similar lines to previous years and all are welcome. Coaching starts at 10am prompt, please advise the Coaching Co-ordinator you are coming so appropriate sessions can be prepared. We are using some familiar areas but have new starting points for the middle two events.

- ◆ 26th September (Groby Community College)
- ◆ 10th October (Heatherbrook Community Centre)
- ◆ 31st October (Leicester Outdoor Pursuits Centre)
- ◆ 14th November (Parklands, Oadby).

Mairead Roche

Mairead lives in Kettering but attended school in Oakham in 2007/09. She has been in the Orienteering Start Squad for some years, and in 2008/9 was one of 6 girls in the GB Junior squad. She has been following her brother's path, and 2009 was her first British Championship win.

In 2008/9 she achieved the best performances for her age in the country. This culminated in selection for the Junior World Championship in Italy in July 2009. Her excellent performances were not repeated on a world stage where she was 35th in the Sprint Championship and her team was 19th in the relay.

She peaked to good effect for the Major Championships. Her best period was at Easter when the JK International Festival is held. There are three disciplines in orienteering and she was first on day 1 in the Sprint winning by over a minute in a time of 18 minutes. The following day she won the Middle Distance Championship and the Final Day was second in the Long-distance event. She was overall winner for the week end, based on combined times on the Middle and Long-distance events, by over three minutes. In May she won the W18 British Long distance Championship, and the following weekend she ran up in the next age group and was 5th in the British Middle Distance and 5th in W18 in the British Sprints, failing to qualify for the Open final by a few seconds.

For the club she entered the Open Ladies class in the Regional Heat of the National knock-out cup Club competition and gained third place two minutes behind the winner, a former British Ladies Champion.

Orienteering involves endurance running as well as good navigation techniques. Mairead therefore competes at cross country, on the track and road against the best in her age group. She has a string on good performance in 2009 she was 9th in Midlands Championship (2nd Northamptonshire Junior) in January, 4th in the Ladies Northamptonshire Championship, 60 in the National Cross County and 84 in the Inter-counties. She was 7th In World Championship and Commonwealth Games Mountain Trial in September 2008. She was also 3rd in the English Schools Fell Running championship

Last year she was 21st the best placed GB Junior Lady at the 2008 European Youth Orienteering Championships in September in Switzerland.

Chronicles of Retired Man Time and Money

Retired Man went camping in Fontainebleau, France for 3 days of orienteering. He was doing well except for one control on the first day, the second day and the third day 'at least your orienteering is consistent' I quipped. A highlight of his trip was taking his push bike and cycling through the forests, although one day he got soaked to the skin in an unexpected downpour. It did not stop him from annoyingly and repeatedly telling me 'In France I would just be getting up now they are an hour behind.' 'In France . . . etc etc . . . In France.

A few days later he was going to The Scottish Six days with Peter Hornsby and sharing a house with Chris Bosley & The Middletons. Peter Hornsby was going to pick him up on the Saturday morning. On the Friday evening I hadn't had time to cut up the tray of fresh-baked flapjack into individual pieces (Peter is very fond of flapjack) when my lift to Mablethorpe arrived. So I hurried out of the door shouting 'Don't forget the flapjack and isn't it time you thought about packing!'

Saturday morning 'Hello this is Mablethorpe calling, are you all packed & ready to go?'. A sleepy-voiced Retired Man replies 'I'm waiting for the mobile phone alarm to go at 7.30am then I'm getting up to pack.' Sharp intake of breath from Mablethorpe 'But it's 8.20am right now.....!!' End of conversation, panic packing. Oh dear I guess in France it was only 7.20am

Now the Scottish Six Days lasts even longer than six days because when you get back there's all that plotting of GPS tracks and comparing your run with the winner and with other LEI members, mulling over maps, learning from your mistakes etc etc which kept Retired Man from under feet for days & days THANK YOU Scottish Six Day People.

Retired Man did return from Scotland with a bad back (and possibly a tick bite) so all this armchair orienteering was suitable therapy. He also earned a new nickname 'Heinz' and coffee in a bluey-green baked bean mug; all because he came 57th. There was also this desire to learn more cooking skills, (he was impressed by Peter's chicken,) this enthusiasm seems to have tailed off/petered out.

Peter confessed a few days later that I had his sympathy, looking after John was hard work. It's probably that he is always the last to be ready, or can't find his keys or his wallet???

After Scotland the wallet was missing for about a week, Peter searched his car, no, it wasn't there.

Coincidentally Roy e-mailed me a video clip of, I think it's a young Billy Connolly, singing a song entitled 'I can't find my wallet or my car keys' with a note 'Does this remind you of anybody'. Now it does resemble John. I haven't heard the voice 'cos I have to admit I don't know how to get this computer to make noises and if I ask John again he'll just throw his arms in the air in utter despair at my appalling computer skills.

I haven't been to many Summer League events this year but I did manage the Sunday morning Burrough on the Hill meeting accompanied by a brown (technically 'liver') spotted Dalmatian dog called Millie who was holidaying with us for a week. Her owner said that liver spotted Dalmatians are quite rare and admired in the southern parts of England, but the heathen Northerners would have them drowned at birth!! I thought it best not to mention that I come from Sale, near Manchester. Millie & I walked lots of the footpaths in Cropston & Thurcaston and discovered several paths that are inaccessible to larger dogs because the stiles are not dog-friendly. Little dogs can be lifted over. Where there aren't any holes in the hedge or those dog flaps that can be raised, I struggled with a difficult, wriggling dog, and attempted to lift her over the stiles. These attempts were probably funny enough to appear on Candid Camera but were not appreciated by Millie or my back. I am considering a political career with dog-friendly stiles the major point on my manifesto. Any readers wishing to support this motion please get in touch. At the moment the best stile, awarded the "Marks & Spencer" title by my friend Chris(tine) and myself, is the stile where the footpath from Hallgates /Horseshoe Cottage, Bradgate diagonally crosses the cattle field and this wonderful stile with hand holds, non-slip netted foot treads and a DOG FLAP leads over the stream & into Swithland Wood. (Attempt at Grid Reference 540118) Please don't snitch on me to the Duke of Edinburgh if I've got the GR wrong. If any one wishes to contact me to nominate a stile for an award please get in touch. I expect photos would help.

Sence Valley in early August was a peaceful place mainly because I had turned up on the Saturday & the Farmer's Market/ introduction to Orienteering, archery, canoeing was on Sunday!!

I had been hoping to meet Roger Edwards but apparently he was getting himself locked out of his daughter's house with his car keys locked inside. Not a problem, just run the several miles home.

All went well for the Sunday and hopefully the team (Ursula & Roger W, Roger E & Roger K) spread the word about our sport. A sleepy Retired Man appeared later on having returned from the 6 Days at midnight on the previous evening

Saturday Aug 22nd and the 'Come & Try Orienteering' team were in action again at Watermead. The team numbers were swollen with help from the Hardy family, Jenny Williamson, Chris P. and Pauline Olivant. The first task was moving the club tent relative to an already erected gazebo to a position that satisfied all criteria: closed to Joe Public & suitable dumping ground for personal stuff, open access to Joe P. with tables sheltered from any possible rain, chocolates shaded from the sunshine, space to move about, how many sides are doors, how many are windows? etc etc

Well this tent got moved & shunted & moved again until we were satisfied; so how come it looked very similar to how we first started?. Soon we were competing with the Punch & Judy man to attract the kids attention. Lollipops and a downhill run from the mammoth were our star attractions and lots of children & adults enjoyed the string course and other orienteering activities.

Roger Kelly gave me the empty lollipop jar, Chris P looked puzzled so Retired Man explained 'She is always making useful things out of rubbish' so Chris joked that 'She hadn't had much success with you.'

Aahh but I haven't given up yet.

There was a lot of discussion at Watermead about the fees for Fineshade and Chris P was explaining all the extra costs that are incurred when staging a major event e.g. parking, access, and toilets etc perhaps if you tick a relevant box on your entry forms to bring your own potty & loo paper, promise to dispose of your faeces at home and then you can pay less.

While we were at Watermead, our milkman forgot to leave us our 2 pints of semi for the weekend. It was Sunday morning when the imminent shortage of milk was observed, and Retired Man offered to get some more when he cycled the couple of miles to Anstey Co-op.

'You'll need a strong carrier bag for the milk and all those supplements with the Sunday Times' I suggested. Getting all macho, John says he 'can manage with the paper & milk dangling from the handlebars in a normal carrier bag' and 'how much milk would I like?' Thinking of the bumps in the road, weight of milk etc I decide to give him a fighting chance and ask for 2 pints. 'That's not enough' says Macho Man 'I'll get 4 pints.'

I despair.

Off he cycles down the uppy downy Cropston Rd, past the allotments and on to Anstey Co-op.

About twenty minutes later he reappears all sheepish and quiet.

Now I'm sure my readers have finished the tale with visions of spilt milk on the tarmac but wait.....

'I've used my coupon to buy the paper but I couldn't get any milk as I had no money. By the way have you seen my wallet anywhere?

Teacher Part 1 Course 13th October 2009

This is an introduction to coaching in schools and is useful to club members willing to support the club coaches prior to events or at Country Fairs, etc. or who might be interested in the full coaching qualification eventually.

The next course is on Tuesday 13th October at Leicester Outdoor Pursuits Centre and the fee is £45. There are bursaries available.

Further details from Roger Edwards or Judith Holt.

Swithland & The Brand

It is a while since this area was used on its own for a full colour coded event (May 2004) as it more often used in conjunction with Bradgate Park. Parking was at Bradgate's Hall Gates car park which meant a longish walk to the start. Indeed the organiser, Roy Denney, spent much of his time ferrying helpers and occasionally competitors to/from the start/finish. The weather was excellent and the courses well planned by Bob Haskins and controlled by John Marriott. We even had a visitor from Tasmania so it could be thought of as an international event. The longer courses even had the privilege of entering the "private garden" of The Brand which is a fascinating area.

Congratulations to David Lawson, the 2009 Score Cup Champion, just pipping Roger Phillips and Andrew Jackson. A special mention must go to Michael Parsons who punched the greatest number of controls but by being somewhat outside of the 45 minute limit found his score almost halved by penalty points. Well done also to Abigail Leake, winner of the Yellow course.

Swiss O Week – August 2009

We presented ourselves at registration with a large feeling of trepidation, our first multi day event and our first experience of orienteering abroad. After many hours on the road the valley of Muotatal did not immediately look like an obvious choice for 6 days of orienteering. It had been many years since I had tried out my "German" and I was quite aware that what I did remember may be of limited use in this part of Switzerland. What a relief to be given a booklet covering everything, left page in German the right page in English - what a gift! It soon became obvious that the event was very well organised. From our allocated pitch at the event campsite, a farmer's land temporarily transformed into a site for 1,000 runners, we could access the daily transport at our specifically allotted travel times. Swiss precision.

On Saturday evening the moody skies exploded with colour as fireworks marked the National Day's celebrations. Their rumble through the valley heightened the tension as we mulled what our first day would have in store.

Stage 1 was a short, wet sprint around the Canton's capital Schwyz and overnight the rain continued, forcing some campers to shelter inside at the event centre. We began to wonder if we had made the right choice as weather reports seemed better for the Scottish 6 days which was also on over the same days.

Our first mountain stage (Schwialppass – promoted as the "varied day") on Stage 2 began with a 50 minute ride, tightly packed into military transport (duros) which conveyed us from the valley via numerous hairpin bends to a remote, misty, rain swept mountain pass. For Ben (5 years) the transport would prove to be the highlight of his trip. From the assembly are the 2 km walk to the start was through alpine pastures with the sound of distant cowbells ringing eerily somewhere out on the misty slopes. Whilst not quite the views depicted in the pre-event publicity, it was very pleasant but strange to have the opportunity to orienteer at this altitude over this ground.

Generally the terrain was pleasant to run across, but that changed when the courses headed into complex sections of limestone pavement. These were to feature and test us over the next few days. Unfortunately our experience was marred by a two hour wait for our return transport. We waited, along with about 200 other runners, in torrential rain without shelter. We learnt later that the military had mistakenly been sent home early. A slight flaw in the Swiss military precision but thankfully transport did eventually get us back to base.

As the extremely heavy rains continued into the evening, race officials announced that a landslide had affected access to the planned Stage 4.

In improving weather, Stage 3 (Glattalp – the “arctic day”) was spectacular, taking place from a height of around 1900 m above sea level. After more military transport, the 4.2 km walk in climbed 700 meters and took us over an hour. Sadly, this apparently proved too much for one 59 year old competitor who suffered a fatal heart attack. The start was above a mountain hut and our courses made a circuit of this high level grassy plateau with its spectacular lake. Courses made use of the numerous pits and a more extensive area of limestone pavement for control sites which tested (and exposed) micro navigational skills (or lack of them).

Wednesday was a welcome rest day and in glorious day we biked down the valley to take the funicular railway to Stoos, and then cable cars to the stunning viewpoint overlooking Lake Lucerne.

With continued sunshine, Stage 4 (Chinzig-Seenalp – the “breathtaking day”) originally planned to be Stage 6, involved a hot and dusty ride in the duros and a lengthy walk in of over 950m with 180m of ascent. A precariously perched portaloo by the start at an altitude of around 1900m above sea level was quite a sight, and you really needed courage to step inside and trust its stability. Courses gradually worked across the generally grassy and stony mountain slopes, maximising the intricate contour details, to drop competitors back down to the finish area which was sited alongside the now swollen stream. Most then took advantage of a welcome soak for their hot, tired feet. From the rolled up windows of the duros we had amazing views on the return journey.

After the mountainous days, the dense woodland for the middle distance race of Stage 5 (Gibel – the “rough day”) came as quite a contrast and rather a shock. Our runs were tough and the terrain was most definitely rough! The established woodland had dense undergrowth covering the boulders beneath. Although the terrain was shown as mainly white or light green on the map the consensus was that this was rather optimistic, and the array of grazed bodies suggested much was more “fight”.

I had a pretty good result on this stage but this was essentially down to adopting the approach of walking on a direct bearing. Mark was less successful but I am partly to blame. We met up mid-course and I had kindly offered to indicate where I thought we were but in my haste I pointed out the wrong pit! I have not been forgiven and I am sure

Mark will eagerly recount the details if you dare to mention this to him!

Continued access problems resulting from the earlier landslide left us heading for bed not knowing whether we had completed our final day of orienteering. However, early morning news was that there was to be one more day, with Stage 6 returning to the Gibel area for hastily arranged courses.

Unfortunately, transport could only be partly provided so we all had a steep walk back up the hillside, on a single track road that zigzagged through the otherwise tranquil hamlets. Goodness knows what the locals, let alone the animals, made of this unusual intrusion.

Unfortunately for Ben, despite a supreme effort to walk up to the event area, a string course was not available. He was able to proudly claim his mini O kite and a certificate to show he had completed each of the courses but we had a final race before we could claim our memento.

The terrain was just as tough on a second visit and we also had to rely on the accuracy of our own hand drawn courses as pre-printed maps were understandably not available.

After a fairly poor final run, I had difficulty locating the correct enormous pit on the latter part of my course. I was frustrated to hear the hubbub from the tantalisingly near, but desperately elusive, finish area. Worse still, I kept passing a guy with a video recorder and feared my errors were being captured for posterity.

You can imagine my horror, when at the after event party I did appear briefly on the video. Fortunately, I look like I have dibbed the correct control (although appearances may be deceptive) as opposed to the chap who was seen dashing backwards and forwards like something from a Monty Python film just above the elusive pit. Whilst you cannot witness my actual moment of fame, there are bits of promotional video on the net if you want to get a feel for the event. We are proud owners of a SOW penknife, our memento for completing the event.

Overall our results were not great and some of the courses were declared void, but we competed and completed each day. Photographs, video clips and results, including those for John and Mairead Roche who were also there, can be found on the event website www.swiss-o-week.ch plus links to the event maps on route gadget at www.olternativ.ch/gadget/cgi-bin/reitti.cgi We really enjoyed the experience, it was quite an adventure but we are already considering going to the next Swiss O in 2011 if you fancy swelling the numbers from LEI. To break up the journey home it was off to Zermatt for a rest, well from the orienteering at least!

Summer League 2008

The 2009 summer league finished on the 1st September with a well received score at Beacon Hill for which all the control sites were benches! Congratulations to all summer league winners listed. This years competition was one of the most closely contested for several years with Roger Edwards and Simon Ford going into the last event with less than a point between them. In the end Roger came out slightly ahead to become this years Summer League Champion.

I hope that you enjoyed this years league. As usual we were looking to keep up to date with new trends in the sport. This year this included more urban and sprint style events. Our urban events have been hybrids covering a mix of park or woodland as well as streets. This included more traditionally mapped events at Castle Hill and Glenfield as well as using the new sprint specification maps of Market Bosworth and Ibstock from Sence. If you are not familiar with the format, I would mend a look at routegadget for the Ibstock even; a lot of route choice decisions and small mistakes were often costly. The same applies to sprint and we continued with 2 sprints this year on a new map of Loughborough university and at Guthlaxton high school. Both used a prologue and chasing start format. A lot more fun that a single sprint race, the chasing start really does put on the pressure and force errors! This year also saw the first time radio-O had been included in the summer league with Bob Titterington running a score event at Outwoods.

For the record we had 20 LEI organised events this year as well as the trailquest, treasure hunt and went to Coventry's memorial park for a sprint -o. The LEI events themselves attracted 874 entries from 184 competitors with an average entry of just under 44 per event, slightly up on the last few years.

Planning for 2010 summer league is now coming to a close and we will be including a mix of sprint urban and more traditional events, but ideas for different formats are always welcome, I'm currently considering whether middle distance can be included , (A challenge to define this when none of our courses are much longer than 6k). I am always interested in feedback on the sort of events we do. Are there types of events or areas that you would like to see used or alternativley ones to avoid. It is difficult to get the balance right, but without comments from a broad range of competitors we may be missing chances to make the league even better. As usual let me know if you would be interested in planning. If you have some orienteering experience under your belt, the summer league is an ideal place to organise and plan your first event. As always help and support is available and this year you might also consider either the organisers or planners course in November.

The Autumn series and Winter leagues are already upon us. The Autumn series

Spotlight on Leicester and Environs

On this occasion, as your Access Development Officer, I thought I would share my records with you on those areas in and around the City of Leicester excepting those along the River Soar which I have already covered.

BRAUNSTONE PARK

The park covers 168 acres of beautiful open parkland, ancient spinney, wooded areas and meadow land with evidence of ridge and furrow cultivation. Two lakes on the southern boundary attract migrating birds and a wide variety of wildlife. Braunstone Hall stands proudly in the centre of the park along side the refurbished stable block part of which still retains many period features including hefty wooden stalls, hay troughs and the original stone flooring. The Hall and stable block are a Grade 11 listed building.

The first records of Braunstone are found in the Domesday Book of 1086 where it is referred to as Brantestone or Brant's Tun. Braunstone was a daughter settlement of nearby Glenfield and was established in the late 8th or early 9th Century, sited at the southern edge of Leicester Forest.

After the Norman Conquest much of England was parcelled up amongst William the Conqueror's noblemen and Braunstone was awarded to Hugh de Grantemesnil, one of his most trusted Barons.

Over the centuries many noble families were connected with the Manor and lands of Braunstone, a far cry from today. In 1246 Roger de Queney is named as owning the land but on his death it passed through the female line to the de Ferres family of Groby and at one time the Greys.

More recently the Winstanleys' came to Braunstone in the mid 17th century. They played a vital role in determining the future economic and social history of their properties in and around Braunstone and Kirby Muxloe for the next 275 years. They had a reputation for being fair-minded and judicious, holding important roles as leading dignitaries in The Leicester Corporation. Their decisions influenced the lives of the communities of both Braunstone and Leicester. James Winstanley was a puritan and a lawyer by profession in the service of the Duchy of Lancaster before taking up residence in Braunstone. He was succeeded by his son Clement and in 1775 he commissioned the local architect and builder William Oldham (who later became the Lord Mayor of Leicester) to construct the present hall, built on a rise with views overlooking Charnwood Forest.

conditions many of the working class lived in brought about compulsory purchase of most of the estates and the remnant surrounding Braunstone Hall itself was opened as a public park in the early 1930s.

In 1932, after refurbishment, Braunstone Hall opened as a 'Senior School'. However as younger families moved into the new housing estate the need for a Junior School was more essential and in 1933 The Braunstone Hall Junior School was opened. It served the community as a school until it was closed in 1996.

During WW2, the Local Home Guard was based in Braunstone Hall and in 1944 the park was the home of the HQ of the US 82 Airborne Division. The tented encampment and Nissan huts were laid out in exactly the same pattern as the neighbouring streets so as to blend in and hopefully not attract the attention of any over-flying bombers. The rest of the park was put to agricultural use. Wheat, barley and potatoes were some of the crops grown while sheep grazed the remaining pastureland.

Between 1943 and 1945 the 168 Battery of the Royal Artillery and the 52nd/53rd Field Regiment Royal Artillery were also stationed on the park. Throughout this period Braunstone Hall School remained open coping with the many difficulties that arose from being surrounded by a "friendly invasion".

For our purposes we have the park mapped with the neighbouring Western Park and use them together for small events although crossing the busy A47 causes some problems and the level of vandalism in Braunstone Park is a problem.

BROCKS HILL

This small country park extends to just 30 hectares (67 acres) Native trees have been planted, wildflower meadows and an orchard created, together with a play area and ponds. The visitor centre doubles up as the HQ of the Leicestershire & Rutland Wildlife Trust.

The centre and park were opened in 2001. The project received £939,000 funding from the Millennium Commission and match funding from various partners including De Montfort University and Leicestershire County Council. This green wedge between Oadby and Wigston has now been protected from housing development!

The plantings are just starting to mature and we have created a permanent orienteering course throughout the park and in the grounds of the neighbouring leisure centre.

CASTLE HILL

This small Country Park is on the borders of Leicester City and the County and adjoins Anstey. Established in the early 1980's the park comprises some 250 acres of grassland, plantation and broad leaved woodland. The A46, Leicester Western By-Pass cuts the park into two linear sections but the ability to cross at both ends and in the middle lends it to figure of eight courses and makes it quite useable.

The south east section borders Beaumont Leys and is made up of relatively high land with good views out over Bradgate Park and the Charnwood Hills. The north and west section, bordering Anstey, comprises mainly flat meadow land associated with the Rothley Brook with periodic flooding. Aside from this pleasant brook, with its established abundance of birdlife, and the newer planting in copses, the park also has bluebell woods, located off the Astill Lodge Road and some fine ash, oak and willow trees associated with the old hedgerows and streamside.

The Castle Hill Country Park is also home to two Scheduled Monuments. The Castle Hill Earthworks located off the Astill Lodge back road, comprise of an earthen rectangular banked enclosure and fish pond dating to the medieval period. The site is associated with the Knights Hospitaller and seems to have functioned as a monastic grange or sheep farm. We tend to infrequently use this bit as it is infested with nettles for much of the year. King William's Bridge, historically known as the 'Dambridge', crosses over the Rothley Brook. This is a medieval stone packhorse bridge, which was widened in 1696 for King William III's visit to nearby Bradgate House. As its name suggests, there was once a sheep wash associated with the bridge. Other interesting heritage features include ancient hedgerows, some complete with wood banks and deep ditches. These are a physical reminder of the area's past as a royal hunting ground and deer park. In the vicinity of the Castle Hill Earthworks there are also industrial remains from the Victorian Beaumont Leys Sewage and irrigation scheme. In its time, this was the biggest scheme of its type in the country.

Ancient tracks pass through the park and despite the proximity to areas of some deprivation this is a corridor of genuine attractiveness.

EVINGTON ARBORETUM

The entrance to this area used to lead into the encampment of the 504th Parachute Regiment of the US 52nd Airborne Division which was later converted into a POW camp.

The Arboretum was established by Leicester City Council in 1970 saving the area from possible development and securing its future as a public open space. Between 1970 and 1973 hundreds of trees were planted, many donated by organisations and members of the public.

The trees weren't just stuck in the ground willy-nilly. They were planted in family groups. For example, in the south west corner, near the Evington Brook, you will find poplars and willows. In all 500 species of trees are to be found. Consideration was given to preserving certain views across the site, such as the north towards St Denys' Church, and west towards the university.

The former meadow below St Denys' Church is now a designated area for memorial tree planting. These trees are chosen for their ornamental value and suitability to the site and are planted by the City Council.

The Arboretum is a haven for birdlife. Kingfishers and the odd heron can occasionally be seen along Evington brook. Blue tits, great tits, marsh tits, coal tits, green woodpeckers, blackbirds, owls, robins, wrens and thrushes are often to be seen together with many other species.

Park and the areas between them. This involves some road crossing but Piggies Hollow is a complex overgrown area with a number of paths and leads into a strip of mature woodland before the village itself has to be negotiated.

The Arboretum has a permanent orienteering course. (See also Evington Park)

EVINGTON PARK

Only two miles away from Leicester City Centre and backing onto the General Hospital, Evington Park has the tranquil atmosphere of the country estate it once was. The 44 acres of parkland include attractive floral displays and a wide variety of trees some scattered singly and some in copses. There are gardens, ponds and play and picnic areas. The park has fine examples of English oak and chestnut, rare Gingko trees and mature beech trees. In the spring, the rhododendron and azalea beds surrounded by fragrant shrubs are a delight. The black mulberry at Evington Park was planted in 1836, the year the house was built.

We have mapped and used this area for many years in conjunction with Evington Arboretum off Shady Lane and both have permanent orienteering courses.

HUMBERSTONE PARK

This 20 acre park with its attractive gardens is located off Uppingham Road, three miles to the east of the Leicester City Centre. It was opened in 1925.

Bushby Brook flows through the park, was at one time dammed and used as a boating lake by local people. Since the 1950's it has been straightened and the banks are now planted with willow, birch and hazel.

It is barely big enough to even sustain a permanent course

KNIGHTON PARK & SPINNEY

Lying two miles to the south of the centre of Leicester this beautiful 78 acre park offers colourful shrub borders, a water garden, heather woodlands, play areas and a rock garden.

Knighton village appears in the Domesday Book under its Scandinavian name of Cnihetone.

In the 1720's, Edmund Cradock, a woollen draper of Leicester bought Knighton Hall and its associated farmland. In the years that followed, the family acquired almost all the land in the parish.

Knighton Hall is now the official residence of the Vice Chancellor of Leicester

University and the name of the Cradock is preserved in the Cradock pub. The City Council bought land just before the Second World War with the intention of establishing a park but work was not begun until 1953.

In 1840 oak trees were planted to form the enclosed spinney to help provide oak wood for future shipbuilding. To make the oaks grow tall and straight, ash were planted in between them. Later Cradocks decided to keep the woodland as a fox covert and in 1932 a covenant was published declaring that the spinney should be a nature reserve for all time.

The Wash (or Saffron) Brook flows through the park and is bordered by trees and herbs in the northern area. There are various avenues in the park, including the laburnum avenue close to the spinney and the gingko (maidenhair) avenue in the heath garden. A charming path bordered by magnolias runs across the middle of the park.

In addition to the spinney there are blocks of newly planted woodland consisting of a lime wood, a beech wood and a willow wood.

The park has been used for orienteering for many years and has a permanent orienteering course.

THE ORCHARDS

This area is valuable in that it is one of few within Leicester City itself. Whilst very small it is very complex.

The larger part was neglected allotments acquired by the City Council and turned into a Local Nature Reserve. Given the various fruit trees which survived, this is now a very rich if largely overgrown area, which abounds with birdlife. It is now actively managed by volunteers with Environ Trust (Groundwork Leicester & Leicestershire) and numerous pathways are kept open. Some of the woodlands have been thinned and coppiced giving a variety of terrain.

A school sports field and some pastureland attached to the City Demonstration Farm link the area to Goss Meadows a linear wildlife reserve which in turn links to a very old and neglected copse known as Gilroes Spinney. By using the streets of a new housing development these can all be used together for good small training events.

SPINNEY HILL

This was mapped under a 'Sports for All' award to try and bring orienteering into deprived inner city areas but circumstances have dictated that we have never really got any use out of it.

Almost as soon as a site was mapped part was given over to a police station. There are 34 acres of sloping parkland, with two popular and well-equipped play areas and an adventure playground. Sporting facilities include bowling green, tennis and netball and there are large grassed areas. It includes a refurbished sports pavilion and it is thought that an aborted permanent course was commenced.

As long ago as 1885 the City Corporation were worried about a lack of public open space in this area of Leicester and acquired this land; paths were laid out, new trees planted and a pavilion erected.

The City Wildlife Project created the nature area during the park's centenary in 1986. They planted over 150 trees. Oak, maple and birch were planted in the woodland areas and the water-loving alder and willow beside the brook. Many wildflowers were introduced into a newly dug pond.

WESTERN PARK

The Hinckley Road site was purchased for the development of a park in 1897 and is the largest park in Leicester offering 178 acres to explore. The main drive features a wide avenue of trees which were laid out for the inaugural opening in 1899. Within easy access from here are the children's play areas, bowls greens, tennis courts and woodland walk.

The park is a mix of meadows, mature woods and hedgerows, interspersed with newly established shrub and wooded areas. Overall this creates an ecological environment where wildlife abounds despite being surrounded by development.

Within the park is the Eco House, a show house demonstrating ways of making your home more environmentally friendly and making it work in today's throw away society. Set up and managed by Environ (Groundwork Leicester & Leicestershire), with financial support from Leicester City Council, this Trust also organises teams of volunteers helping with maintenance at many of the city parks.

For our purposes this park is mapped with Braunstone Park just across the busy A47, a park covering 168 acres of beautiful open parkland, ancient spinney, wooded areas and meadow land with two lakes. The combined parks provide a sizable 'green' oasis near the borders of the city of Leicester.

Out and About

One recent piece of disappointing news is that a second golden eagle has been poisoned in Scotland. Much as we try and help to restore at-risk creatures there are some who for their selfish purposes will undo the good work being done by others.

Their cousins are faring a little better. After an absence of about 200 years a wild sea eagle has been seen in Cumbria. Whilst living wild, this nine month old female is actually one which was part of a release scheme in Fife and has a satellite tracking tag.

Cumbria was the home of the last breeding pair of sea eagles in England, way back in 1794 and whilst this specimen was almost certainly just ranging far and wide seeking food in a harsh winter it is cause for some encouragement that they may return to inhabit the Cumbrian area. This bird was patrolling the coast of the Solway Firth.

In a similar vein it is encouraging that the pair of immature Osprey which set up home near Kielder Water have fledged three chicks and seem to be doing a good job of bringing them on.

These are the first such birds to nest in this area for 200 years and are thought to be of the expanding Scottish population.

Another popular bird is the puffin or sea parrot. Scientists are tagging Puffins to find out why their numbers are declining around Britain's coasts although they fear they know the answer.

This bird is particularly exposed to many risks not least predation. The population on Ramsay off the Pembroke coast was wiped out by rats but these have themselves now been eradicated and the puffin is being enticed back by slightly larger than life model puffins scattered by appropriate nesting burrows. Quite an odd sight as I recently sailed round the island.

It will at best be a slow process. The birds live about 30 years in normal conditions and are slow breeders. The female lays a single egg in the roughly one metre-long burrows they inhabit and the chicks are mainly fed on sandeels which appear to be migrating further north as our waters warm. Puffins reach sexual maturity in one year, but tend not to breed until five or six years old. A high mortality rate among adults over a few years can quickly destabilise the population.

The population of puffins on the Farne Islands, one of the UK's key colonies has fallen by a third since 2003 and as this is the largest puffin colony in England it is of particular concern. It was a bit puzzling as food in the waters around the Farne Islands was thought to be plentiful and they appeared to be breeding well, with good numbers fledging but the birds were not coming back after the winter period.

Birds are being fitted with tiny GPS recorders which will record the position of the bird every minute for a few days, during when the birds will have been out on foraging trips. They are attached with temporary glue that weakens after about four days, allowing the recorders to be recovered and downloaded. This will show how the birds dive for fish and their foraging behaviour during the summer months but we do need to know where they go during the winter as this appears to be when many puffins perish. To this end some birds are being fitted with geolocators, which are much smaller than GPS loggers and can be permanently fitted to a bird's leg ring and as long as it comes back at some point they will be able to get a record of where it has been. These measure light levels; recording when dawn and dusk occurs each day allowing researchers to calculate day length, when midday occurs and the daily longitudinal and latitudinal co-ordinates for the bird.

The UK's largest puffin colony on the Isle of May, in the Firth of Forth, recorded a similar fall in numbers over the same period

Sea temperatures are suspected as the major cause, whether one-off due to unusual weather or as part of global warming generally. Only time will tell but hopefully the research will assist. Sea changes can affect plankton growth, which would have had a knock-on effect on sandeels. The photograph is one I took myself a few years ago on the Farne Islands.

Another creature being helped at present is the native crayfish. A fond memory of my time living in Wharfedale when my children were younger was cooling my feet after a long walk by paddling in part of the river Wharfe near Burnsall when I turned over a few small boulders having a nosy, as you do, and found a white-clawed crayfish. Severely threatened by the spread of disease ridden and aggressive American cousins these creatures are now rare in the waters in the midlands and south but are still holding out in the rocky streams of the Pennines. The immigrants have brought in a fungal disease which the locals have little immunity to.

Our native crayfish only grows to about one inch in length whereas the American signal crayfish is about nine inches long. The immigrants are causing problems as they not only feed on any creature smaller than themselves, including their own kind, but do considerable damage to river banks. They burrow to such an extent that banks have been known to collapse. New regulations now permit the catching of crayfish and the larger ones make a nice snack which might help keep their numbers down.

Attempts are being made to help the native species. 250 native crayfish were caught in Wiltshire where they are competing with the incomers and are being relocated to cleaned up streams in the Mendips where there are at present no Americans.

Another project in the Yorkshire Dales has been running since 2003. It has ring fenced the natives to try and keep out the invaders and is being augmented by a captive breeding programme. 300 young were produced by the programme last year and sampling suggests that 60% of these have survived.

Finally some really good news on the conservation front. For those of us partial to a wee dram we have a new excuse. A recent deal by the RSPB means that for every bottle of Black Grouse sold 50p will be given to that organisation to help fund protection of this endangered species.

I'll drink to that.

Roy Denney

Wanted, families!

The third family coaching series starts on Monday 14th September at Brookvale High School 6pm to 7.30.

Families, adult and children groups, should apply to Mrs Birthe Richter Wilson on 0116 232 2718

Late joiners are being accepted.

More details are on the club web site under Juniors / After-school club (www.leioc.org.uk/juniors/after_school.html).

Permissions

Judith Holt and John Cooke are stepping down from the roles of Permissions secretary and Permissions Administrator respectively. Both roles will be taken over by Iain Tebbutt from 1st January 2010. Any queries about permissions relating to this year should still be addressed to Judith and John.

Fixtures

This fixture list is intended to list events in and around the Midlands and neighbouring areas, plus other items likely to be of interest. Unless otherwise stated Local events offer entry on the day (EOD) to a range of colour coded courses with start times from 10.30 to 12.30. Local events will only have a limited range of courses. Regional and National events provide a range of age related courses and are normally entered in advance using a Standard Entry Form (SEF) or more frequently these days online; EOD will usually be limited and more expensive. Most will offer a limited number of colour-coded course for EOD. Cheques payable to organising club , if not otherwise specified.

The OS map reference is either the car park or point from which the event will be signposted. The list is based on BOF registration, but events are sometimes cancelled. If you are uncertain of whether an event will be on, check with the organiser. The editor takes no responsibility for wasted journeys !

CHANGE OF EVENT STRUCTURE IN FIXTURE LISTS

2009 sees the start of the new British Orienteering event structure with 3 levels of event. .

- ◆ Level 1 = NATIONAL (British and Area Championships and the JK)
- ◆ Level 2 = REGIONAL (Age Class Ranking Events)
- ◆ Level 3 = LOCAL (Participation events including Colour Coded, Summer and Winter League etc.)

Courses available at Colour Coded Events are White, Yellow, Orange, Light Green, Green, Blue and Brown unless the Event details state otherwise.

This replaces the previous 5 category system although at present the British Orienteering fixtures list appears to be still using the old system apart from dropping category 4. This makes it currently very difficult in the to distinguish a local event with a full complement of colour coded courses from a "Summer League" type event with limited courses
